

Meet aims to share air industry's best practices

KUALA LUMPUR: The two-day AgustaWestland (AW139) Operators' Flight Data Monitoring Conference, starting yesterday, aims at improving the quality of the aviation industry's airworthiness by sharing industry's best practices.

In a statement, the organiser Weststar Aviation Services Sdn Bhd (WASSB) said the inaugural conference offered infinite learning possibilities for delegates in the presence of a mixture of local and international speakers.

"The conference aims to promote a widespread technical discussion among key industry stakeholders anchoring around the areas of AW139 helicopter Flight Data Monitoring and Health Usage Monitoring Systems," it said.

WASSB chief executive officer, Gen (R) Tan Sri Muhammad Ismail Jamaluddin, said the company was paying heed to what the industry was demanding in aviation services at present. — Bernama
